

Continents

The earth is divided into seven big landmasses. These are mostly separated by water except for Europe, which is separated from the rest of Asia by mountains. These big landmasses are called continents. They are named: North America, South America, Europe, Asia, Africa, Australia, and Antarctica.

Landforms

Draw lines to match the pictures with the correct landforms.

Island: an area of land completely surrounded by water.

Canyon: a deep, narrow valley with steep sides.

Mountain: a large, steep hill.

Mesa: a flat-topped mountain.

